Pres. W. J. Kerr,

LOGAN, UTAH... Feb. 6, 1904. 190...

Logan, Utah:

Dear Sir:

We are looking for a young man between eighteen and twenty years of age, unmarried, bright, quick and ambitious, one who would like to learn the banking business with the view of becoming a banker, and who is willing to work for a nominal salary. Can you recommend any such?

We consider this bank affords more rapid advancement than a larger institution, where promotions are only effected after years of faithful service.

Very truly yours,

Dic.

Cashier A. M. Fleming,
First National Bank, City.

Dear Sir:

Upon my return from Salt Lake City, I find your communication of the 6th inst., asking me to recommend a young man who would like to learn the banking business, and who would be willing, in order to get a position in your bank, to work for a nominal salary.

We have a number of bright, ambitious young men in the School of Commerce in the College, who would, I am sure, give you satisfaction. If you would kindly inform me regarding the salary you would be willing to pay, I shall confer with Prof. Rexell, and after looking over the situation carefully, I shall write you definitely regarding the probability of our furnishing you the kind of man you want.

Yours very truly,

President.

LOGAN, UTAH.....Feb. 9, 1904.....190...

Pres. Agricultural College,

Logan, Utah:

Dear Sir:

Your favor of 8th at hand. We pay the young man in question $30.00 per month. As previously written you, we consider the educational privileges of this bank for any one desirous of learning the banking business and all its branches, of more compensation than the salary, and we should not care to take a young man in here, unless he is ambitious to become a banker, and he must be thoroughly honest and come from a good family.

Dic.

Very truly yours,

Allan M. Fleming Cashier
